HE WAS ONCE A BAREFOOT BOY

Once a little boy bringing the cow home from a pasture on the present site of Pickering College, Sir William Mulock, K. C. M. G., former postmaster-general of Canada, father of penny postage throughout the British Commonwealth, former chief justice of Ontario, a few weeks ago visited Pickering College and presented every student and member of the staff with a metal plaque carrying words of a Quaker, Etienne de Grellet. Sir William is now 97 and as mentally alert as the deer which, as he told Pickering in presenting the plaques, jumped over the pasture fence when he tried to herd it home with the Mulock cow many years ago.

Sir William is seen above presenting one of the plaques. Beside him is Headmaster Joseph McCulley, who has succeeded Sir William as the shepherd of the Pickering pastures. In the background may or may not be discerned Assistant Headmaster R. E. Kourke, Andrew J. Davis, vice-president of Davis Leather Co., and Mrs. Bourke.

The photograph was taken by a Pickering College senior student, Warren Gale, and is used through the courtesy of the college.

Peter Hogg of the Newmarket military camp, collided with the Heacock car.

Pte. Hogg told Constable Kenneth Mount that he was going at about 38 miles an hour and was unable to stop his car on the wet pavement.

Both cars were badly damaged, but luckily neither man received severe injuries. Pte. Hogg suffered cuts on his forehead.

PLANS PROGRESS FOR TAG TO HELP SAILORS

Mrs. Robert Martin is the chairman for a tag day which will be held Saturday, June 14, in aid of the Navy League. The proceeds will be used for Canadian sailors.

"This is the first Navy League tag day held in Newmarket," Mrs. Martin told The Era. "We hope for a very good response. The navy is doing so much for us, we should do something for our sailors."

Mrs. Martin said that "any subscriptions will be welcomed." Administration expenses are very small, she added.

Among the taggers will be Mrs. Molly Inglis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin, who, with her three daughters, are evacuees from war-stricken Scotland.

Newmarket Pioneered In Electric Lighting

Newmarket was one of the first Ontario centres to adopt electric street-lighting. This was recalled by the visit to Newmarket this week of Mrs. M. H. Bingham (Fanny Reesor), of Winnipeg, a daughter of B. F. Reesor, who owned and operated the town's first street-lighting plant in the late eighties.

Mrs. Bingham was accompanied on her visit to Newmarket by her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Bingham, Toronto.

It was 21 years since Mrs. Bingham had been in Newmarket and she dropped into The Era office to find out where the post office had gone.

"My father's flour mill was burnt down in 1887, and within the year he started an electric light plant," Mrs. Bingham recalled. He also started a chopping-mill, she said, which she thought was run by water-power. She was not sure whether the light plant was operated by water-power or by steam.

"Fairy Lake" was in those days known as "Reesor's pond." Mrs. Bingham said that in 1892 her father sold his property to the Office Specialty Co. and the family moved to Lindsay. Her father started another electric light plant there, and Mrs. Bingham's brother, Walter Reesor, is now manager of the Hydro-Electric plant there.

Mrs. Bingham moved to Winnipeg in 1920.

The Light, Heat and Power Co. was formed to take over control of the electric light plant, which is now a part of the Office Specialty buildings, from Mr. Reesor, O. E. Trench, Queen St., who was 82 years old last April 19, told The Era.

"Chas. Lundy, J. E. Souch, Dr. Stuart Scott, Andrew Robertson and myself formed the company," said Mr. Trench. "Mr. Reesor had put in street lights about 1883. They were arc lights. The current jumped across two carbon points and made a very strong light."

Mr. Trench said that his company extended the power system to homes in Newmarket. However, the company folded up in a few years and was taken over by the town. The plant was later purchased by the Office Specialty Co. and the town then built its present waterworks.

Reesor's chopping-mill was right where the Office Specialty engine-room is now, C. F. Willis, Newmarket clothier, told The Era. Reesor's light plant was operated both by water-power and by steam, and supplied carbon arc-lights on the streets and also in the Methodist church, Mr. Willis said.

The town took over the light plant and moved it to the present distributing plant site at the water-works, he said.

The band went by bus.

FATHER'S WORK STILL BEARS GOOD FRUIT

A former Newmarket girl, Mrs. James Adie, Point Pleasant, West Virginia, and her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Woolfitt, Flint, Mich., were visitors in Newmarket on Wednesday.

Mrs. Adie (Katie Smith) is a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Smith, who was pastor of the Congregational church, Newmarket, from 1880 to 1887.

In 1901, while in St. Catharines, Mr. Smith translated the New Testament into braid Scots. One of the original copies was offered at auction in Edinburgh recently for British war victims' relief.

Mr. Cain took part in the old boys' reunion held in Newmarket a couple of years ago. He leaves his position with a colorful record of government service.

Records Broken At Pickering Sports Day

Seven new records were established at the annual Pickering College track and field meet on Saturday. Ross Malkin of Barrie, a senior student, broke three of the records.

Although the weather was not of the best, the cinder track was fast and records went toppling. Patrons of the field day were Sir William Mulock, K.C.M.G., and Samuel Rogers, K.C., Toronto. A large number of parents and friends of the students were present.

Tea was served at 4.30 p.m. and later a dance was held in the college gymnasium.

Raising Flag Will Mark Tomorrow Eve Torch Ceremonies

Great Parade Down Main St. Precedes Ceremonies At Flagstaff on Water St., In Promotion Of Loan

The monster Torch Day parade, in support of the Victory Loan, will start from Main and Huron Sts. tomorrow night at 7.30 p.m., D.S.T., and proceed down Main St. to Water St. Marchers will assemble at the Davis Leather plant at 7 o'clock.

Following is the order of the parade: military camp band, men from the camp, the high school glee club, pupils of the high school, the R.S.A. bugle band, Alexander Muir school, King George school, St. John's school, Stuart Scott school, Citizens' band, Queen's York Rangers, Newmarket Veterans, Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, Fire Brigade.

Mayor Dr. L. W. Dales will act as chairman of the Torch Day ceremonies, which will be held, following the parade, at the Office Specialty park.

Included in the program is the raising of the Union Jack on the new 80-foot Victory Loan flagpole by men from the Newmarket training camp. A prayer, dedicating the flag, will be said by Rev. A. J. Patstone, and a prayer for His Majesty's forces and victory by Rev. Arthur Greer.

Lieut.-Commander Gordon B. Jackson, R.C.N.V.R., will deliver an address at the park. He will be introduced by Aubrey Davis, Victory Loan chairman for northern York. Following this will be the parading of the Victory Torch. The actual torch will not be shown here, but a scroll, signed by representative citizens, will be shown and will be sent along with the Victory Torch to Prime Minister Winston Churchill. The Newmarket Boy Scouts will raise the pledge flag. The Citizens' band will give a concert after the program.

In the event of rain the program will take place in the Newmarket arena.

Victory Cavalcade Will Visit Newmarket June 14

LOCAL UNITS WILL JOIN PARADE ON MAIN ST. WEEK FROM SATURDAY

A huge cavalcade of floats, depicting Canada's war effort, is scheduled to roll through Newmarket next Saturday, June 14. These are the same floats that took part in the monster Victory Loan parade in Toronto on Saturday.

The cavalcade will include 40 trucks with mounted floats, ten motorcycles and six other vehicles, and will be accompanied by a 30-piece band. It is expected to be in Newmarket from 5.30 to 6 p.m., D.S.T. It will come from Barrie into Newmarket along Huron St. to Main St., down Main and out Eagle St.

Soldiers from the Newmarket training camp, the camp band, the Newmarket Citizens' band and the R.S.A. bugle band will join the parade at Main St.

These floats on wheels will tell the story of why Canada is at war, what her citizens must avoid, what Canada is doing, what Canada needs in the way of military equipment, and the necessity of buying bonds in order to achieve victory.

The officer commanding the cavalcade will be Major I. C. Ellard of M. D. No. 2, Toronto.

Harkness Pitches To Dales, Davis Catches, Open Season

TROOPS BEST DAVISMEN AS HUNDREDS VIEW OPENING TILT

By JACK PEPIATT

With Col. R. B. Harkness, D.S.O., throwing the first three balls, Mayor Dr. L. W. Dales at bat and "Andy" Davis in the catcher's position, the hardball season of 1941 got under way in Newmarket on Tuesday evening.

Several hundred fans lined the sidelines of the new Stuart Scott hardball diamond and enjoyed the ceremony and atmosphere that always attends the first baseball game of a season. The players too seemed to catch the spirit of the night and played good baseball for the first few innings.

Military Camp and Davis Leather clashed in the hardball fixture and the troops went away with the 11-9 decision. Play was fast at the start.

Davis Leather took a three-run lead in the first on runs by Fairley, Wright and Tansley. Bob Peters knocked in the last two runs. Bunker scored for the camp in the last of the first inning.

Six runs were scored by the troops in the second inning, three in the fourth and one in the fifth inning. Davis Leather scored three in the third, and three in the sixth and last inning. The game was called in the sixth on account of darkness.

Davis Leather used three pitchers, Saumlich, L. A. Vender and Peters. The first two were soldiers. Gill and Jones pitched for the camp. No home runs were scored.

The Newmarket Citizens' band and a pipe band from the camp took part in the opening ceremonies. It was perfect ball weather and hardball received a fine introduction to Newmarket fans.

Era advertising brings results.

RECEIVES SHOWER

Members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church are gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. McDonald, Catherine Ave., for a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Leva McDonald this evening.

Send Clothing For London Friends' Relief

The Newmarket Friends women's work group held a tea on Friday afternoon, when the articles made for bombed victims in Britain were on display in the schoolroom of the church.

During the past few months the women and girls have been busy knitting socks and sweaters, sewing quilts and making dresses for children. Over 178 articles of new clothing, including four quilts and 24 bags, containing towel, wash-cloth, soap, tooth powder and brush, costing 75 cents each, were sent. Made over and repaired articles numbered 115 pieces of clothing and 12 pairs of shoes, making a total of 292 articles shipped to the Friends House, Toronto, to be sent to Friends relief in London, England.

To help in this work the Newmarket women's group brought Rex Frost and his pictures, "Cavalcade of Europe" to the town hall on Thursday evening of the previous week. Some 200 men and women attended and for two hours Rex Frost made comments on pictures shown on the screen.

The bombing of cities and refugees along the roads of France and Belgium gave a sense of grim reality as to what has been happening in Britain during the past few months and gave inspiration to continue with relief work for bombed victims and refugees.

"Good wishes aren't enough. Buy Victory Bonds."

GUESS WHO IS IN THAT NO. 7 SWEATER

The catcher is none other than that perennial hardball and hockey favorite, "Shorty" Turan, catching for Davis Leather in Monday night's opening hardball game. The hefty batter is a member of the Military Camp squad. This fine action picture, which was taken by Wilf. Gynane of the Budd Studio, gives a good view of the new Stuart Scott hardball diamond.

COMMANDANT MEETS PRESIDENT

Child Victims' Fund Started, As Spitfire Fund Reaches Top

Nest-Egg From Spitfire Fund Goes Into New Fund For Children Sponsored By Town Newspapers

Contributions to the Newmarket (England) Spitfire Fund have reached $474.83, more than enough to make $100 to send to the mayor of the English namesake town.

This included a transfer of $94 from the civic guard account with the consent of the town council. The civic guard is not functioning.

It will take about $450 to make the $100 and the balance will be used as a nest-egg for a new subscription list to be opened by the Newmarket local newspapers, the Express-Herald and The Era, for the Lions British Child War Victims' Fund.

Contributions to this fund will now be welcomed, and may be made to the treasurer, H. M. Gladman, to the Bank of Toronto, or to your local newspaper. The money will be sent to Britain without a cent of cost being deducted and will be administered by Queen Elizabeth.

Write Your U.S. Friends To Visit Canada, Aid Britain

FIRST WEEK IN JULY SET FOR VISIT TO NEWMARKET

You can help the Canadian war effort by writing your friends in the United States to visit Newmarket this summer, preferably the first week in July, which is being marked in many centres throughout Ontario as a war-time old home week.

Newmarket invites all former residents of the town to visit home during the first week of July. No elaborate program is being prepared, but those returning at that time will have a chance to talk to childhood and former friends.

Stouffville and other York county centres are joining in an effort to make the first week in July York county homecoming week.

"The Homecoming Week idea has the endorsement and the active co-operation of the Ontario Travel Bureau," states Douglas R. Oliver, Toronto, director of travel and publicity for the Ontario government. "We simply have to explore every possible means of getting people of the United States to visit Canada this year."

The plan has the approval of Mayor Dr. L. W. Dales and it is hoped to arrange some civic event and entertainment for at least one day.

Write to your friends now, or send them this newspaper, or send their names to The Era, and an invitation will be sent them.

LETTERS WELCOMED

Letters from soldiers will be welcomed by The Era for publication.

PEPPER AND SALT

By PEP

Office Specialty takes on the Town in the hardball contest tonight. With Pete Kaus, fireball artist, on the mound, the Specialty won the title last year. They have lots of men to pick from this year and should be at or near the top rung at the season's end.

Question tonight is whether Kaus will or will not be on the mound. Pete, who originally pitched in the Penetang belt, which produces some of the best hardball players in Ontario, is now connected with the Eglinton junior hardball league in Toronto. However, unless his dates get mixed, he probably will also do mound work for the Office men.

The hardball schedule ends on July 31, which means that the whole schedule of 18 games will be played off in the two months of June and July. This will leave plenty of time for the play-offs. The hardball boys should get some fine crowds this year, since the Redmen have dropped out of the softball league.

The Town and Military Camp may prove to be the serious threats to Office Specialty domination of the hardball picture this year. The camp is said to have several pitchers from the same Penetang belt to pick from and they may make easy pickings of the league. Herb Cain may play hardball for the Town instead of softball for Aurora. Herb likes the States game better than softball and if his tricky ankle holds up he will probably go out for hardball.

It may be crying over skim milk, or should I say spilt milk, but I still cannot figure out why Newmarket should not have had a men's softball team this year. There were certainly enough players in town to form a team that would make at least a fair showing and I believe these players would rather play for the home town than for other towns, and there were certainly more than enough fans to keep the team out of red ink.

If there had been enough executive push to get the remaining Redmen practising and to encourage young players to try out, we would have had a team this year. As it is, hardball stands a fair chance of spiriting away any softball material that may be at hand. It will be hard to organize a softball team here once hardball really gets into stride.

Perfect weather was on hand for the hardball opener on Tuesday night. The opening ceremonies weren't too long and the crowd was of major proportions. The game between the Military Camp and Davis Leather got away to a good start but began sagging in the middle and became uninteresting towards the

JEWISH CONGRESS ACCEPTS MAJOR JOB

The war efforts committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress, which has already furnished over 150 recreation huts in Ontario military camps, has now undertaken to look after recreation furniture and equipment for all military camps and barracks in Canada. The department of national defence at Ottawa has accepted with thanks this offer to furnish more than 500 recreation huts. A typical view of a section of one of these recreation rooms is seen above. The Canadian Jewish Congress war efforts fund is registered under the War Charities Act.

The camp won the engagement 11 runs to 9 but there was little to choose between the two teams. With a good pitcher, Davis Leather could have won the game. They had to take what pitching they could get. However, opening ball games don't mean a thing except, in this case, that hardball is away to a fine start this season.

SHRINES AND RECORDS
By Isabel Inglis Colville

From remotest antiquity men have built shrines and written histories. It seems, indeed, a necessity for man to commemorate events.

And succeeding generations would have been the poorer had this instinct not been so strong, for from these shrines and records we have been able to read much of the past that would else have been a closed book. Nothing can be said with certainty, though supposition has been rife and argument prolonged and heated over the date of the building of the pyramids, yet there they stand, unmoved by passing years or the controversy which has raged about them.

They stood there when Joseph, under Pharaoh, ruled Egypt; they saw the enslavement of the children of Israel and their triumphant departure under Moses; they stood there when Joseph and the infant Christ, with His mother, fled to the land they dominated; and they have seen the old temples fall into ruin to give place to mosque and church.

But they and the tombs and temples have yielded up some of the secrets of the past to those who could read their records, and they still stand—the last of the seven wonders of the ancient world, to confound scientists with their construction and to give point and life to tales of the mighty kingdom that once bordered the Nile.

What would we know of Babylon and Assyria if it were not for the tablets which have been found among their ruins, and what would we know of the history of the Holy Land and the faith in one God, if men had not been impelled to write of the gradual leading up, all through the Old Testament, to the birth of the Saviour of the world? And all these old, old records have survived and been cherished, and each generation in every civilized land has added memorials of art; whether it be writing, painting, sculpture or building, that when their generation shall have become the past, men may, by these means, read of each era and be able to have a fair picture of life as it was then.

Many shrines in France and Belgium were desecrated during the last war. Cathedrals, which represented in stone the patient work and high faith of their builders, were reduced to ruins, and many another building, sacred by association and by its history, shared the same fate.

But the damage done to these was small compared to the devastation which has reduced hundreds of priceless historic buildings to ruin, in this war.

Westminster Abbey has long been regarded as the shrine—the historic centre of the whole empire.

The tombs of men who had given something fine of art, of statesmanship, of literature and service, not alone to the empire, but to the world, had a place within its old grey walls; and other men journeyed there to stand a moment and pay tribute to those who, having done with time, yet left behind them something to follow them into eternity.

And so many churches—churches small and churches large—all warm with the prayers of people—people humble or people great—who had brought there their perplexities and laid them down, confident that help would come and strength to bear, if need be—have gone too.

St. Paul's Cathedral, built by the great Sir Christopher Wren and as much a part of the British Isles as our sovereigns, the Guild Hall, where countless mayors have held sway, the British Museum, that repository of unreplaceable things, where men have gone to study the past and link it with the present, the houses of parliament, where the mother of parliaments was born—on each and all of these shrines men of the empire have left their record for all to read.

And Buckingham Palace is the shrine in which live, move and have their being two of the rarest jewels of our far-flung empire—our king and queen.

Each of these shrines has been desecrated—by which the Nazi, contrary to his desire, has only made them more valuable, more worth preserving and fighting for.

All the little homes laid waste by German airmen have become shrines of something so well worth fighting for that men and women and little children lay down their lives to preserve it.

When this war is over, we'll build shrines again—to commemorate the heroism, the trials, the significant happenings of our era. It is strange that, no matter how great the pillage and vandalism of the conquerors or aggressors since war began, always SOMETHING has been left to tell of the life lived in that place.

Napoleon's army defaced many Egyptian temples, but enough were left to tell a tale; the Spaniards sacked and ruined the Incas, but in the jungles temples and palaces still tell of the glory of their past; Rome and Athens have been sacked and pillaged but some great and beautiful memorials still stand.

It must be meant that there shall be a continuity of record from past to present, and that no matter how thorough the vandalism of the attacker, enough will be left from which to read the story of the past. Every shrine stands for something—the wayside cross, the humble chapel, the great cathedral, the splendid museum or library, the memorial hospital, the home, the graves of those who have gone to join the great majority—all these speak!

They speak of effort, of love, of care for others, of the desire to perpetuate something, and they write the record of their times. Without shrines and records we would be poor indeed. We can only hope the shrines we build after this war will be those to commemorate a peace, just, lasting, and, above all, Christian.

REWARDS

From youth to old age, the thought of rewards companions us down the years—we may scorn the idea, but nevertheless there is sure to be a reward—good or bad—waiting for us at the end of each piece of work.

The reward may not be a material one—it may be only a little glow in one's inner consciousness that warms the heart, or it may be an unpleasant mental aftermath from a sowing of errors of thought or deed, but the fact remains, it is the reward we have earned, one way or the other. We can all remember the times in our childhood when we were told "If you'll sing this or recite that, you will get something you want," and so, although our hearts palpitated with fears and cold shivers chased one another up our backs, we fixed our minds irrevocably on the promised reward and made the effort, which was sometimes more painful to the listener than the performer.

And speaking of rewards, we have a cat which is almost human in its ideas of values.

"What's that cat doing?" inquired my mother, as Spec appeared with a large mouse, which he proceeded to lay at my feet. When stood back, stared at me, and gave a good imitation of a youthful tiger roaring.

"He wants his pay," I told her, as Spot, roused from slumber by the roars, walked calmly to the mouse, picked it up, and walked off with it, while Spec looked on benignly, then turned an accusing eye on me and waited.

So, like Mother Hubbard, I went to the cupboard, and not, like that immortal old lady, finding it bare, brought forth a bit of salmon, which Spec accepted graciously and as his due, and walked off to hunt again.

My better half chuckled as he said, "It's worth it to have him rid the barn of mice, but will he do it again?"

He HAS done it over and over again, so he's on the workers' list and pay-roll of Ingleside.

But everyone isn't as satisfied with his reward as a child is or as my little grey cat.

I heard a young man say—it was just before the war—"What's the use of my education—look at the years I've spent on it, and now—look at the job I've got! I cannot make use of one of the things which have made up my life for all these past years."

He had looked forward to and felt entitled to a reward—not a stoppage of work, but a chance to fit into a niche where that work would be of use—mean something in the scheme of things.

I knew a man who was fitting himself for opera. He had the voice and appearance and what training he had was adequate.

Then fate, circumstances, providence—call it what you will—stepped in and he was compelled to give up the dream of years, accept a position which was utterly repugnant to him, and so lose the reward of years of work at something he loved. Do you wonder these men asked "Why, why?" and, for a time at least, grew bitter.

I heard a noted preacher say lately that two things made him believe in immortality. One was that some place frustrated lives must find fulfillment and the other was that it seemed such a terrible waste that lives which gave so much as some do to the world should cease.

I remember, too, hearing the question asked, "How can we ever feel at home in heaven—it will be so different?" and the answer was, "If we care for the worth-while things here and try to cultivate them in ourselves and others; if we love beauty in lives, in nature and in art, we will carry all that with us and we will be at home when we lift the veil—that will be the reward for whatever of self-denial and loss of ease, the following of the precepts of the Sermon on the Mount has caused us."

Rewards are of various kinds. Some still believe in "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," and perhaps that has been the hardest concept for many to get away from.

The reward for giving up revenge is, I suppose, commensurate with the effort, giving as it does peace of mind and heart. But this war is fostering the feeling of the old "eye for eye"—how can it help it, when one sees the rights of the helpless disregarded and cruelly unchecked?

But as peace once more spreads her wings over the world, a better understanding of the madness which has played havoc with the morals of two nations may be given us, and our feeling will be that a new crusade of the cross will have to be carried into these lands now darkened by the evil power of a few maniacs.

I suppose that is Christianity. First the cleansing of these lands from the fever growth of Nazism and Fascism, then the introduction of the oil and wine of brotherhood. A fever is sometimes long and dangerous, but it must result in new life—we wait the issue!

IF YOU WOULD HAVE CANADA DO MORE, YOU DO MORE!

There is no lack of confidence in Canada's credit. Canada can't fail or default. Her dollars may buy less or more than they do today when it comes time to pay back the money she is now borrowing, but there can be no doubt of her ability to pay. We are just borrowing money from ourselves, and when it is time "ourselves" will pay it back to "we." Those who are fortunate enough to have money to lend today need not hesitate to invest in Victory bonds—it will be as safe as money can be.

In many instances, buying Victory bonds is going to mean some sacrifice to the lender, either through the transfer of money from some more profitable investment or through a reduction of personal expenditures or both. Those who make a sacrifice will have real satisfaction in return—the knowledge that they are contributing generously to a satisfactory outcome to the war. If the people of Canada are moved to lend more money than they are asked for, the government in turn will be encouraged to increase its commitments and its help to the Allied cause. In other words, it is not for each one to lend just what he regards as his share but to lend in accordance with his desire for Canada to increase her contribution to a democratic victory.

MEN AND WOMEN OF GOOD-WILL

Selecting a pastor for a church is often a matter of disagreement, even though it would be natural to expect church members, like "little birds in their nests," to agree. It is understandable, however, that people are careful about the sort of person whom they invite to their church to lead, to advise, to teach and to counsel them for a period of years. Sometimes, during these periods of selection, there will be two or three parties pulling in different directions. At such times, those who put the unity of the congregation before the satisfaction of personal whims, likes and dislikes are a strong anchor for any church.

Over at Stouffville the United Church has been selecting a new pastor and by majority vote on the first ballot selected out of six names that of the Rev. Douglas Davis of King United Church. Immediately those who had voted for some other minister joined in a vote to make the invitation unanimous. Mr. Davis has been at King for 11 years, and is well known in Newmarket, Aurora and district. Still more evidence of the spirit of co-operation were two of the ballots, which bore, instead of the name of proposed pastors, the words, in one instance, "I'll support the one chosen to the best of my ability," and, in the other instance, "Whomsoever God may send."

Mr. Davis of King goes to Stouffville and Mr. Atkinson of Stouffville goes to Uxbridge. It is a fine tribute to these men that neighboring congregations should call them. It is the clearest evidence that they have been a success in the fields which they now leave.

SHIPS AND PARTNERSHIPS

The Midland-Penitang Free Press-Herald states that naval officials at Ottawa have decreed that the name "Penetanguishene" is too long to give to one of the new submarine-hunting corvettes now being built in the Georgian Bay ports. Two thoughts will occur to everyone, give the name "Penetanguishene" to something bigger, say a destroyer (Newmarket has a destroyer), or cut the name down to corvette length and use the colloquial "Penetang."

Going into this matter a little more deeply we find a speaker quoted in last week's Northern News, Kirkland Lake, as saying that "Temiskaming had a ship named for it during the last war. The name is given as the "War Temiskaming." We had heard of the "Fighting Temeraire" but not of the "War Temiskaming" but since there was such a ship, we can't see why there shouldn't be a "Penetanguishene." There are five syllables in both instances.

The Kirkland Lake speaker was Ralph S. Taylor, Temiskaming district chairman for the 1941 Victory loan campaign. Mr. Taylor also said: "Today, in Canada, we have neither conscription of men or money. If we ever have conscription of men there should be conscription of wealth, of industry, of all our effort regardless of what it is. In that way we will ensure a quicker success and ultimate victory for the British Empire."

We are with you to a man, Mr. Taylor! Canadians should go into this war either as shareholders in a corporation, with liability limited to what each wants to put in, or as members of a partnership with liability unlimited, the senior partners giving their capital and the junior partners giving military services as needed. Dollars are not more sacred than lives.

LITTLE DROPS OF WATER WEAR AWAY A STONE

It is interesting to note that the Canadian government is a fair target for criticism by Canadian writers but that the British government is above criticism by the same writers. Whatever the British government does that doesn't inspire is explained by saying that the British government has more information than we in Canada have and that it did what Canadians would have done if they had had all the facts. The Canadian government, however, is not let off so easily.

No doubt in England it is the other way around. The British government is probably the target of much criticism from its own newspapers but the Canadian government probably receives nothing but praise. Both governments need criticism, but it should be remembered that what the British government does is of far more consequence to Canadians at the moment than what the Canadian government does.

There can be little doubt but that the British government has fallen down in its use of propaganda. At first the British started out splendidly with pamphlets to scatter over Germany, apparently expecting an early collapse within Germany. This did not materialize and then apparently the British gave up to a great extent the effort to win the German people to the democratic side. Anyone who has had any experience with advertising knows that it may take years to accomplish a tough job, and that results should not be expected too soon.

Prime Minister Churchill has been splendid in encouraging his fellow citizens and fellow combatants, but he has refused to make any statement of war aims which might win over enemy peoples. He really needs someone to do the propaganda job that Lord Northcliffe did for Lloyd George and the Allies during the last war. Probably advertising-minded Washington will make good this defect.

It would seem almost impossible to defeat Germany without some considerable assistance from the people of Germany, Italy and France. It is therefore encouraging to see Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, making a statement of British war aims which seems to be free from the spirit of revenge and likely to win as much favor in Germany as in Britain. Among the aims which Mr. Eden outlined were: establishment of social security abroad as well as at home; prevention of starvation; stabilization of world currencies and prevention of fluctuations in employment, markets and prices.

Mr. Eden said: "The free nations, America, the dominions and ourselves . . . clearly have the will and intention to evolve a post-war order which seeks no selfish national advantage—an order where each member of the family shall realize its own character and perfect its own gifts in liberty of conscience and person." The only escape he could see from the "curse" of war in Europe was "by creating and preserving economy health in every country."

There is Mr. Eden's answer to those who say that the causes of this war were not economic.

Mr. Eden seems to think that the German people are sufficiently aware of British war aims. Mr. Eden says: "The fact that at the bottom of his heart every combatant knows this (that we have no motive of self-interest prompting us to economic exploitation either of Germany or of the rest of Europe) is the ultimate source of our strength. To every neutral satellite or conquered country it is obvious our victory is . . . to their plain advantage."

Speeches like Mr. Eden's, if distributed in Germany, will be a mighty factor in winning the war.

WHAT OTHERS THINK

SIR WILLIAM STILL LIKES FISHING

(Dundalk Herald)

Sir William Mulock, who is within two years of the century mark, continues mentally active and still likes to fish for speckled trout. He is spending this week at Holland House, in Holland township, engaged in his favorite pastime. He has religiously refused to fish with anything but the fly.

In last week's Newmarket Era we read with interest where Sir William had been guest of honor at a dinner at Pickering College. Among other things, the former postmaster-general, chief justice, grand old man and topnotch citizen advised his young hearers (some of whom were students from war-torn Britain) to "so live that you will have in later life nothing but happy memories." Sir William himself seems to have proven himself an excellent example of the doctrine he now teaches.

THE TRUTH LIES BETWEEN

(The Financial Post)

If we are going to fight this war to a victorious conclusion, and then do an able job of reconstruction of the post-war world, we shall have to keep our minds clear of economic dogma, whether the dogma of the past or the dogma of current apostles of the panacea school.

The super-orthodox economist who says we can never repair the material ravages of war because there is not enough "money" in the world to pay the bills is just as wrong as the man who thinks we can do it easily simply by printing the "money." Both have their attention focused on a symbol of wealth or work rather than on the resources and labor themselves.

A clear-sighted approach to the problems of the post-war world is provided by Dr. J. W. Beyon, former president of the Bank for International Settlements, in an article in La France Libre, translated by the London Times. Dr. Beyon argues:

1. We can and shall rebuild the war world by production. The financial problem is secondary and technical.

2. "Economic planning" will not get us production. So far no adequate substitute has been found for the profit motive as an incentive to production.

Those two ideas seem so simple that they may too easily be dismissed as oversimplifications. Actually they are profoundly important ideas; the ideas of that significant but unpopular middle ground between the groups who cling to out-moded, pre-World War I economic notions and those of the "advanced" school who have various plans for rebuilding the war world by means of government departments armed with statistics.

When this war is over we are going to renew the sterile argument between "orthodoxy" and "radicalism"? Or are we going to accept the simple truth that the only way to produce wealth is by work, stimulated by proper incentives; that the only way to put production to use is by distributing the products themselves and not by taxes for redistributing money.

CAROL SONGSPARROW STOPS, LOOKS AND LISTENS

BY RUTH DINGMAN HESS

"It is impossible to be anything but cheerful, with my mate singing so beautifully on that branch most of the afternoon, like he has been doing today," Carol Songsparrow said to herself, as she busily fed her five young babies. "He helps me a bit in between times, too, of course."

"Our friend, the little olive-green Red-eyed Vireo, certainly keeps up his end of the June orchestra, too, with those continual warbling snatches of his. I often get him mixed up with our Robin friends, until I stop to listen carefully."

"Listen to that song coming from the apple-tree across the field," Mr. Songsparrow called to his mate just then. "I'll bet you guess wrong as to whom it is."

"Why, it's Rob Robin, isn't it?" Carol replied quickly, without stopping to listen very carefully. "Or is it? No, it doesn't seem to be quite the tone of voice of a Robin." Just then the bird in the apple-tree came into full view and Carol gasped at what she saw.

"Flying feathers!" she exclaimed. "How stupid of me to be fooled that way again. Of course, it's Mr. Scarlet Tanager. Isn't he simply too, too, beautiful—with that vivid scarlet suit and those black wings! He's really far more dashing than the Cardinals, even, as far as brilliance of color goes, isn't he? But that warble of his, so much like the Robin's, is a little hard to recognize. Once you see him, then you know him in an instant. Of course, if you see his mate—poor, plain, little light green lady, you might not be so sure what family she belonged to."

"Now, listen again, and I'll tell you who some more of your neighbors are," said Mr. Songsparrow. "Do you hear that loud, clear warble, which has been coming from the high branch of the tall maple tree on the edge of the hill, where the young trees are quite thick?"

"Yes, I do," said Carol. "I suppose it's some kind of a Warbler, isn't it? If I could see him, of course, I would be able to make a much better guess."

"If you could see him you would know him right away," admitted Mr. Songsparrow. "There, he's going to come into view right now, just for your benefit. Now, do you know him?"

"Why, he's blue all over," said Carol, "except for a bit of black on his wings. Just look at the way he throws back his head and pours forth his nice song. It must be an Indigo Bunting, but I wouldn't have known it unless I'd seen him, I'm afraid. I'm so stupid about people's songs. I'm not like you, who just has to listen and say, 'There's a Yellow Warbler, or 'There's a Chewink.' I did hear an Oven-bird over in the woods just now, though. You could never make a mistake about him, once you'd heard that loud 'teacher, teacher, teacher' call he gives."

"Do you hear those short, loud, piercing calls coming from the edge of the woods?" asked the Songsparrow gentleman a few minutes later. "I'm sure you recognize them."

"Yes, they're Crested Fly-

Conscientious objectors, exempted from military service because of their religious beliefs, will be sent to labor camps in June, it was announced in the house of commons last week. They will receive 50 cents a day instead of the $1.30 they would have received as trainees.

Dublin, capital of Eire, was bombed on Saturday and 61 people were reported killed or missing. Dublin police expressed the belief that the bombing was unintentional and surmised that an anti-aircraft shell may have struck a plane, and caused it to drop its bombs. Ireland has protested to Berlin and has asked Germany to pay damages.

Britain announced the withdrawal of her troops from Crete on Sunday. Fifteen thousand troops were evacuated to Egypt out of an estimated number of 30,000 on the island. Capture of Crete will seriously hamper British naval operations in the Mediterranean. Crete is only 200 miles from Libya.

Hostilities throughout Iraq ceased on Sunday and a pro-British government is being set up. Close co-operation between the British air and ground forces played a decisive part in the campaign against the pro-German elements, it was said. The valiant British stand in Crete prevented any effective German aid from reaching the rebels, London said.

POLICE COURT 6 OF 7 Litter Cases Result in Convictions

"You're worse than a person that takes drink, you are taking people's lives in your hand when you take them out in that kind of a car," Magistrate J. C. M. German told Clarence Wass, Toronto, in Newmarket police court in the town hall on Tuesday. The defendant pleaded not guilty to a charge of dangerous driving in Whitechurch on May 11.

"Early in the morning, about 125 a.m., I was called to the scene of an accident on the eighth concession of Whitechurch," testified Constable Robert Windsor. "I found a car in the west ditch facing north. There was no one at the scene at all. I stayed about ten minutes and then drove into the doctor's office in Stouffville. As I was going into the village I noticed two girls. One was limping. I questioned them."

The officer stated that he took the defendant's car to the garage and that he did not see the defendant until nine o'clock in the morning, when he came to get the car. "Did he give any reason for the accident?" asked Crown Attorney N. L. Mathews, K.C.

"He said that he thought he struck a bump in the road and that it threw him out of his course," replied the witness.

Describing the marks on the road the officer stated that apparently the defendant's car, which was going south, had left the pavement on the east shoulder of the road and travelled about 250 feet when the brakes were applied for 50 feet. Marks showed that the car had swerved to the west side of the road and then slid along on its side, ending up facing north in the west ditch. The top of the car was completely smashed and the left rear wheel broken off. He said that he could see nothing on the same road to cause the accident.

Joseph Foot, Stouffville, who was driving north on the same road at the time of the accident, said that he saw the car lights approaching in the distance and that they suddenly disappeared. At first he thought the red tail light at the side of the road was a truck and as he approached he saw the passengers. He took them to a doctor's office.

In his defence Mr. Wass told his worship that he was driving the car at between 40 and 50 miles an hour when suddenly it swerved off the road. At the time he did not know what caused the car to swerve but later learned that a bolt had "sheered off the brakes." He said it was a 1928 car.

"Thank God, it is busted up, it won't be on the road again," commented his worship.

Questioning further about the car, the court learned that the car has since been repaired and that the defendant had driven to the police court in it.

"Your worship was a little premature when you expressed thanks for the car being off the road," smiled the crown.

Asked if he had been drinking, Mr. Wass replied that he did not drink.

"Where did you go?" asked his worship. The defendant said that he was returning to Toronto from Musselman's Lake with five others when the accident occurred.

"Do you mean to say that you took five people to Musselman's Lake in that old jalopy?"

"Yes," replied the defendant.

"Well, all I can say is that they were fools to go in a thing like that," stated the magistrate.

According to the testimony of Dennis Lynch, Toronto, passenger in the Wass car, he did not know what happened, only that they were going down a hill "when the left back wheel broke off and the car ended upside down on the side of the road."

Asked if they had had anything to drink, the witness stated that they had three dozen pints of beer among five of them, but that the defendant did not have any, as he did not drink.

When asked by his worship if he was working, Clarence Wass said that he was earning $20 a week.

"I am fining you a week's pay, $20 and costs or ten days," stated his worship. "You won't forget this accident in a hurry."

"I'll take the ten days," answered the defendant. "It has cost me enough already. It wasn't my fault. It was the fault of the car."

Pleading guilty, Simpson Fountain, Pefferlaw, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of assault upon John Valesky, proprietor of a hotel in Pefferlaw.

According to the testimony of Mr. Valesky, the defendant came into his hotel on May 24 after he had warned him to stay away from his beverage room on several occasions previously. "I had instructed my waiters not to serve the accused," stated the complainant.

"When I saw him in the room I went over and told him to leave. He said 'you are looking for trouble' and struck me, knocking me away from the beverage room in future or else you'll be brought back here again and I'll fine you plenty," his worship told Mr. Fountain.

As a result of an accident on Yonge St. on May 23, Frederick Roy Yeomans, Toronto, was fined $100 and costs of $38.30 or 30 days in jail on a charge of dangerous driving. A charge of driving while intoxicated was dismissed. Mr. Yeomans pleaded not guilty on both accounts.

"On May 23, at about 9:35 p.m. I was driving north on No. 11 highway," testified Edmund Grey, Toronto.

"Was there much traffic on the highway?" interrupted the crown.

"Yes, all traffic was north-bound," replied the witness.

"How many were in your car?"

"Four besides myself. I was in a line of traffic when all of a sudden I saw the lights of a car going south, coming towards me."

"What side of the road was it on?" asked the crown.

"It was coming on an angle towards me," replied Mr. Grey. "I swerved towards my right to get out of the way."

"Were you entirely on your own side of the road at the time of the impact?" "Yes, I was. It hit my left front fender, smashed the left door in, tore the back end of the car. My car was turned right over on its side." The witness said the other car went through a fence and into a gulley after hitting him.

In answer to the crown's question about injuries received, Mr. Grey stated that his brother received a broken rib, he himself a fractured nose. Damage to his car was over $200, he said.

Asked if he could identify the driver of the other car, Mr. Grey stated that Mr. Yeomans was driving and that a soldier was in the car also.

"Did you notice anything about the condition of the defendant?" Mr. Mathews asked.

"I could see that he was under the influence of liquor," Mr. Grey said that the defendant swayed on his feet and that his breath smelled of liquor.

Ralph Weston, Toronto, driver of a car immediately in front of that of Mr. Grey, told his worship that he had been driving slowly when he noticed the defendant's car coming towards him. "I swerved over onto the shoulder to avoid Mr. Yeomans' car and that left Mr. Grey's car in the way. I looked in my mirror and saw Mr. Grey's car being turned over."

"Were you talking to Mr. Yeomans later?" asked the crown.

"Yes," answered the witness. "His breath smelled of liquor and he was unsteady on his feet."

"Where had his car gone?" "It had gone down into the hollow."

Dr. S. J. Boyd, Newmarket, who examined the defendant about two hours after the accident, told his worship that he thought the defendant "too much under the influence of liquor to be driving a car." He said that Mr. Yeomans was unsteady on his feet and that he was slow to think.

Provincial Constable Ronald Hewatt, who investigated the accident, testified that he arrived at the scene at about 10:30 p.m. "I found a car owned by the complainant on the east side of the road," he stated. "It was turned on its right side. The accused's car was 165 feet away from the point of impact. The point of impact was two feet over the east side of the centre line." The officer stated that he smelt an odor of alcohol on the defendant's breath.

"What was your opinion of his condition?" asked the crown. "I thought he was intoxicated."

Provincial Constable Alex. Ferguson, who aided in the investigation, corroborated the previous witness's statement. He said that he helped Mr. Yeoman to a car in order to take him and Constable Hewatt to the police station in Newmarket and that Mr. Yeoman staggered and he had to help him.

Questioned as to the similarity of the condition of a person who has been in an accident and a person who is intoxicated, Constable Ferguson stated: "A person may be nervous after an accident but he is not unsteady on his feet, not that way." Constable Ferguson had been through a few accidents, he said.

In his defence, Mr. Yeomans told his worship that he was a representative of a commercial credit concern and had covered 450 miles of road throughout Quebec and northern Ontario on the day of the accident. He said that he had made a shift in his seat and that this change in position had changed his line of vision, which caused him to be momentarily blinded by the lights of the approaching cars.

Questioned by his own counsel about an accident that he had been in two years ago when he was a passenger in a car going to a hockey game in Detroit, the defendant said that two men had been killed and another taken to an insane asylum. He had spent some time in the hospital and the nervous condition he sustained as a result was evident at the time of the accident on May 23.

Magistrate German said that he had some doubt in his mind as to the defendant being intoxicated and therefore was giving him the benefit of this doubt in dismissing the drunken driving charge.

"A taxi driver shouldn't be drunk," Magistrate German told Charles Bovair, Sutton, when he sentenced him to seven days in jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Constable Carl Morton, North Gwillimbury, testified that on May 17 at 12:30 a.m., while driving on the lake shore road between Sutton and Jackson's Point, he noticed a car coming towards him and swerving from one side of the pavement to the other. He said the car took a sudden swerve and landed on a three-foot incline. When he went over to the car he found Mr. Bovair. His breath smelled of liquor.

"I am remanding you for sentence on the careless driving charge," his worship told the defendant. "On the drunken driving charge you go to jail for seven days, your car will be impounded for three months and your driver's license suspended for three months."

Pleading guilty to a charge of consuming liquor at Musselman's Lake, Joseph Kelley, Swansea, and Walter Hildebrand, Waterloo, were each fined $10 and costs.

Constable Robert Windsor said he found two cases of quart bottles of beer in a car in a parking lot at Musselman's Lake. "There were only five full bottles and two partly consumed bottles left," stated the officer. He said that there were three men and two girls in the party and that Joseph Kelley admitted being the driver of the car. Both Mr. Kelley and Mr. Hildebrand admitted buying the beer.

Although he pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated, Herman Vandenberg, Baldwin, was sentenced to seven days in jail. A second charge, careless driving, was dismissed.

"On May 16, at about 11:30 p.m., while driving on the county road from Sutton to Baldwin, I noticed a car approaching, weaving back and forth across the road," Constable William Hill testified.

"About a quarter of a mile from where I met it I stopped it and got the defendant out of the car."

The officer stated that as he was on his way to a serious accident he was unable to take the defendant to the station in Newmarket, and so allowed him to go home, sending his car along with another person. He said that he smelled liquor on the defendant's breath and that he was of the opinion that he was intoxicated.

"Have you seen him drunk before?" asked the magistrate.

"Yes, I've taken his car keys away from him on different occasions," replied the officer.

Testifying as to the defendant's character, Charles Pringle, general merchant in Baldwin, stated that Mr. Vandenberg was a hard worker and occasionally took a glass or two of beer after working hours. "I feel that he is a good citizen and worth speaking for," stated Mr. Pringle.

Mr. Vandenberg denied that he had been intoxicated.

"You had to stagger into your gateway," commented his worship.

"No, your honor, I didn't have to stagger. I could go in fairly well," replied Mr. Vandenberg.

"Seven days in jail," ordered Magistrate German. "Go and sin no more."

A charge of illegal possession of liquor against James Hatcher, Toronto, was dismissed. The defendant told his worship that he had been walking along the street in Toronto, intending to take a case of beer, which he bought at the vendor's, to his home, when some friends in a car hailed him and invited him to go fishing at Island Grove, Lake Simcoe. He said that he left the case unopened in the car in the public park where the officer found it. He denied that the party had consumed any beer while fishing and said that he had not planned the fishing trip previously.

Constable Carl Morton stated that as a result of information received he went to the parked car and waited until the fishing party had landed their boat.

"I am giving you the benefit of the doubt," his worship told Mr. Hatcher. "Watch your step the next time."

"Can I take the beer home, sir?" asked Mr. Hatcher.

"Yes, you got it legally, but be sure you take it home and do not open it on the way. The next time I might not be so big-hearted or so credulous."

His worship ordered that a warrant be issued compelling Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCartney, Toronto, to appear in police court next week to answer charges of failing to produce registration certificates at the request of the officer.

Constable Kenneth Mount told his worship that both the defendants had been in Newmarket on May 20 soliciting business for a company which cleans furnaces.

"I asked them for their registration certificates, but they didn't have them with them," stated the officer. "They promised to bring them in to me the next day when they were going to Barrie, but they did not return."

Faulty brakes cost Norman Archibald, Schomberg, and H. Brammer, Newmarket, $10 each.

For not having 1941 operator's licenses Doris Riddell, Pefferlaw, and Ernest Baldwin, Toronto, were each fined $10 and costs.

Arthur W. Embrey, Woodstock, was fined $5 and costs for travelling at 45 miles an hour through Aurora.

Similar fines were given Crangol's Garage, Toronto, and Ella Denne, Sharon, for driving at 45 miles an hour on Eagle St., Newmarket.

A fine of $5 and costs was imposed on Frank Deakin, Kingsway, for speeding on the same road.

Constable J. Jardine clocked Page Station, Toronto, travelling at 70 miles an hour and as a result his worship fined him $15 and costs.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PUPILS HOLD MUSICAL EVENING

The pupils of the public schools, grades five, six, seven and eight, under the direction of Mrs. M. B. Seldon, participated in an evening of music appreciation in the Sunday-school rooms of Trinity church on Wednesday evening. The program took the form of sketches of the lives of a number of the world's greatest composers, exemplified by choruses and solo numbers from their works.

The chorus work was most creditable, in spite of the fact that no special rehearsals had been held for the occasion. Pitch was maintained throughout and the tone was good. The solo numbers were well rendered and most enjoyable, the technique of some of the young performers being exceptional. The excellent work of Mrs. Rutledge as accompanist added greatly to the effect of these numbers.

The epitomes of composers' lives showed ability to pick out the salient points necessary to illustrate that particular master.

Mrs. Seldon and all others responsible are to be congratulated on the success of their pioneer venture, and it is to be hoped it will only be the first of a number.

"Never Trouble Trouble," Council Says Re Parking

Councillor Dr. G. A. C. Guntton, the by-laws chairman at the council meeting Monday evening, stated that there were discrepancies in the Yonge St. parking by-laws and felt something should be done to clarify the situation. "Who is to define what the word 'busy hours' means?" he asked.

"Personally, I would leave the matter alone, it's very contentious," said the mayor, "and you can't fix one to suit everybody."

"There are quite a few merchants who would like a proper by-law," replied Councillor Dr. Guntton.

"Let them present a petition to the council stating what they want," said Deputy-Reeve C. E. Sparks.

"It's their problem, let them recommend," said Councillor Cook.

Town dogs had better beware, Dr. Guntton, with complaints ringing in his ears, checked over the town statutes and found the provisions didn't jibe.

"I don't think it's very clear or that we could ever get a conviction if we laid a charge," he said.

"There are two by-laws, one nullifying parts of the other. It's time we did something about dogs running loose," The council instructed the by-laws committee to deal with the matter for the next meeting.

For the first time this year Mayor Frank Underhill had to break a tie vote of council members, with Councillor A. N. Fisher still being away in western Canada and the six other town fathers breaking even on the vote.

The incident occurred over the request of Stanley Irwin, Mark Ave., for a crossing from the north to the south side in front of his new residence. Cost of a new sidewalk for the whole north side was ruled out as impossible for the town to stand but objection was taken to another crossing as providing "another bump in the road."

Reeve Malloy and Councillors A. A. Cook and Fred Rowland urged a small expenditure for the crossing and triumphed when the mayor cast his vote with the resolution.

"I'd rather have a sidewalk, but we can't afford it and yet we must do something," said the mayor.

"You're on the spot now," his colleagues smilingly reminded the mayor. "Well, I'll vote for the crossing," said Mr. Underhill.

TENDER SYSTEM REVIVED, GO TO LOCAL DEALERS

Streets Chairman Reeve Charles Malloy and his committee awarded the contracts for town supplies, at Monday night's council meeting, by tender, going back to the procedure of some years ago.

"This is the fairest system, as you will see no one has suffered among the dealers, and there has been little if any price cutting," said Mr. Malloy. "Prices for three items were the same by all tendering. Only one dealer tendered on another item and the other item went to the lowest tender and will effect a nice saving to the town."

Awards were: hard coal, equally between B. F. Davis, Stiver Bros., and Williamson Bros.; coke, B. F. Davis; tile, equally between B. F. Davis and the Aurora Building Co.; cement, equally between Attridge and Son, B. F. Davis and the Aurora Building Co.; sand and gravel, E. J. Buchanan.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heaney, Wellington St., suffered the tragic loss of their 14-year-old daughter, Ruth, last Friday.

She attended Aurora public school and the Salvation Army Sunday-school. A year ago her youngest brother, 21-months-old Ronald Heaney, died.

The funeral service was held on Saturday at Aurora cemetery, with Captain Elsie Harris and Lieut. Fleischer, of the Salvation Army Citadel, in charge of the service.

RARE, ANTIQUE QUILTS, OWNED BY AURORA LADIES, DISPLAYED AT WAR WORK TEA

Seventy-six dollars was raised for the British war victims' fund at a tea and antique quilt exhibit held by the parochial guild of Trinity Anglican church last Thursday. A sale of baking followed the tea.

Among the quilts exhibited was a woman one over 200 years old, owned by Mrs. Norman Ende. Mrs. Kenneth Ketchum had on display a quilt made in the state of Connecticut prior to the American Revolution, which was a fine specimen of early quilt-making.

Forty-five years ago the members of the guild at Trinity church worked a block quilt, each block containing an individual name. Mrs. George Spence, the present owner, exhibited this, and a check of the names found very few living or residing in Aurora.

Miss Eva Lemon loaned the exhibit a quilt made in Louisiana in 1808, the colors being dyed from the roots of trees. This quilt came to Canada 75 years ago. A patriotic note was struck with the Queen Victoria quilt made between

WILLING TO HELP

The mistress of the house was explaining the household duties to the new maid.

"This," she said in awed tones, "is a very valuable Persian rug." She paused, and added: "I want you to be very careful when you clean it, as it is very old and has been in the family for many generations."

The new maid nodded understandingly.

"I can quite see it's old, ma'am," she replied, "but I dare say we can make it last through the winter if we're careful."

NO END

"Mamie," said Maud, "what is an ultimatum?"

"I don't know exactly," was the reply. "But judging from the way it is used in diplomatic correspondence I should say it was modern Latin for 'to be continued in our next.'"

John O'Malley is a hockey lad in the office at Collis Leather, and looks as if he will be a real acquisition to the team. If it is junior lacrosse it will be with Brother Damien's team at St. John's school.
